DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-5 are pending in this office action.

Claim objection

Claim 5, the terms "a programmable logic adapted " is unclear to what applicant intend to mean. Correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

2. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being unpatentable over Mason et al., Pub. No. 2001/0047509 .

Regarding claim 1: Mason teaches a method comprising:

identifying a programmable logic core (page 3, paragraph 0057 for building block of a programmable logic) ;

identifying an application (page 3, paragraph 0057 using interface circuit application);

designing an application specific circuit for the application (page 3, paragraph 0057 using interface circuit for specific application) ; and integrating the programmable logic core into the designed application specific circuit (page 2, paragraph 0016 where Mason teaches "merging constraints from one file into another file" to perform the programmable logic integration).

Regarding claim 2: Mason teaches a method comprising:

identifying a programmable logic core for the integrated circuit (page 3, paragraph 0057 for building block of a programmable logic);

establishing a set of timing constraints associated with the programmable logic core (page 3, paragraph 0027) ; and controlling the design of application specific circuit that interfaces with the programmable logic core in the integrated circuit (page 4, paragraph 0082 where the control can be performed by implementing within programmable logic device) in accordance with the set of timing constraints (page 3, paragraph 0027).

Regarding claim 3: Mason teaches a method comprising:

identifying a programmable logic core for the integrated circuit (page 3, paragraph 0057 for building block of a programmable logic);

establishing a sign-off design associated with the programmable logic core (page 3, paragraph 0057 using a programmable logic sign-off design for an interface circuit); and

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 4, 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being unpatentable over DeHon et al., Pat. No. 6,052,773.

Regarding claim 4: DeHon teaches an integrated circuit comprising:

a programmable logic core (col. 3, lines 59-63 where a programmable logic is based on an array of Configurable Arithmetic Logic) ; and application specific circuitry, the application specific circuitry being designed in accordance with a sign-off design (col. 2, lines 59-67 where a network interface performs specific logic calculation design).

Regarding claim 5: DeHon teaches an integrated circuit including:

a programmable multi-scale array (col. 3, lines 59-63 where a programmable logic is based on an array of Configurable Arithmetic Logic) ;

an application circuit interface for providing a signal interface between the programmable multi-scale array and the application specific circuitry (col. 2, lines 59-67 where a network interface performs data and instruction between components of circuitry) ; and a programmable logic adapted that configures the programmable multi-scale array (col. 2, lines 59-67 for adapting and interfacing logic design of environment circuits).
